

Internal promotion

Use case example

Li is preparing for an internal promotion. Having worked for several years in a specialised technical role, she is moving into a management position where she will be supervising a team of technical specialists in a range of domains. In preparation for the new role, Li is working with a coach. Together, they are using VoicePrint to explore how Li may need to dial some voices up or down, as she engages in new working relationships and situations in her new position.